Congress of Vienna Vassal Module

The Toolbar

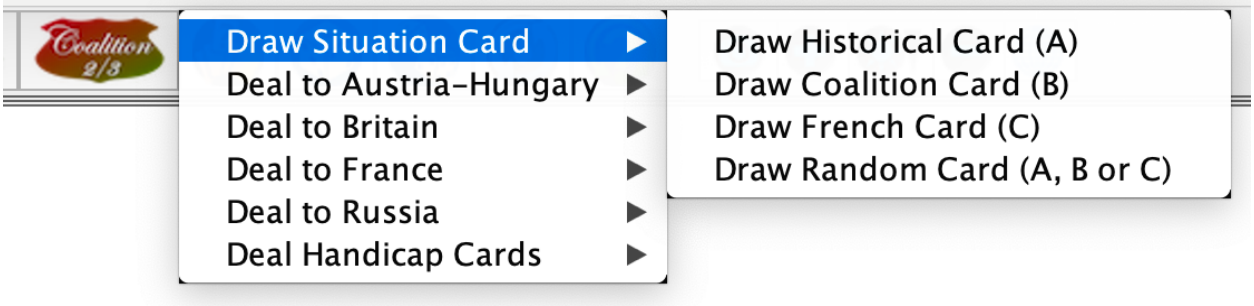

Note that depending on your choice of power some (or most) of the hand windows will be unavailable to you.

Starting a new game

1. Launch the game. Start the game as you normally would in Vassal.
2. Choose Your Side,
   - If you're playing a 2- or 3-player game, the player controlling multiple powers should select Coalition. This player will be referred to as the Coalition throughout the game.
   - If you're playing a solo game, choose Solo, to gain access to all Powers' windows.
   - Otherwise, just select your designated power.
3. Initial Setup
   - There are no predefined setups in this module.
   - Once the game and map have loaded, you are set-up to play a campaign game.

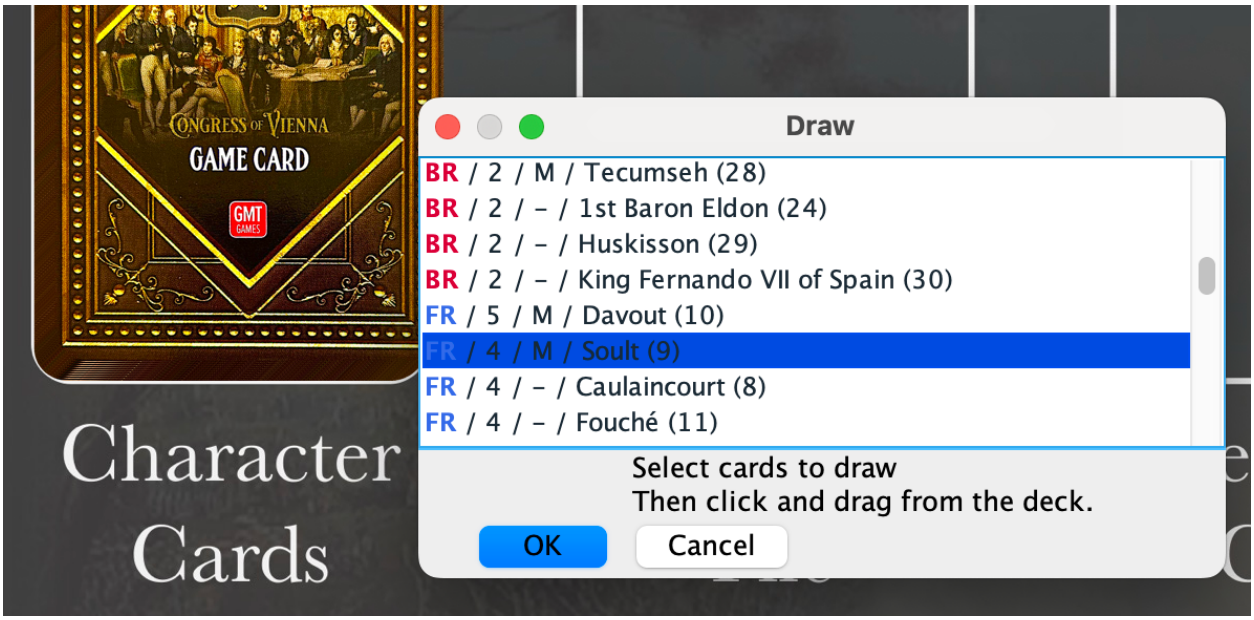

The Initial phase: Draw and resolve a Situation Card

1. Click the Deal cards menu button in the toolbar
2. Select Draw Situation Card
3. When the submenu open, select to draw a card from Deck A, B or C, or choose "Random" to draw card randomly from A, B or C
4. The card will appear to the left side of the negotiation table

The Initial phase: Deal a card to the power chosen by the Environment table roll

1. Click the Open card Window button in the toolbar to open the card window
2. The chosen player right-click the deck of Character Cards and select Draw specific card.
3. A smaller window opens listing all cards in the deck sorted by power, strength and military capability.
4. The player marks the card they want to draw and click Ok to put the card in the top position in the deck
5. The player right-click the deck and select "Top card to Power", where Power corresponds to the player's power.

IMPORTANT NOTE: The list of cards shows all cards currently in deck. This may have the consequence that a card mistakenly is selected even though it is not a card belonging to the active player's power. If you're in a situation where you suspect such mistakes may occur, you can substitute point (5) above with the following

A. The player right-click the deck and select Top card to Staging Deck. This will move the chosen card to the (empty) Staging Deck just below the deck of character cards.
B. Just below the Staging Deck is a label that counts, and shows, the number of cards from a specific power in the Staging Deck. If a card is selected within the rules, the label for the acting player's power should show "1" and all other "0".
C. When all players agree that a card was selected in lines with rules, the player right-click the Staging Deck and select "Top card to Power", where Power corresponds to the player's power.

The Diplomacy phase: Deal cards to the powers

For each power,

1. Click the Deal cards menu button in the toolbar
2. Select "Deal to Power", where Power corresponds to the current power
3. In the sub-menu select the number of cards to deal.

The cards will appear in each power's card window.

Character cards and card windows

Character cards are organized in three rows and when cards are dealt to the powers they will be semi sorted in these rows. The top row will contain the cards corresponding to the power. The middle and bottom rows will contain

- For France: Austrian and British cards in the middle, Russian and neutral in the bottom
- For Coalition powers: The other coalition power's cards in the middle, French and neutral in the bottom
- In 2 or 3-player games the Coalition player will have Austrian and Russian cards in the top row, British and Neutral card in the middle and French cards in the bottom row.

French hand after receiving 15 cards

The "Rows" are vassal "Stacks" so cards can be freely moved in and between rows.

Each card has a context menu that is triggered when a right-click occurs on the card. This menu allows a card to be played or traded during the diplomacy rounds, played as a wager or to be discarded.

Playing a character cards as wager

1. Right-click the card and select "Wager as to Power", where Power corresponds to the player's power (the need to select the power is to have vassal "know" where to place the card on the negotiation table)
2. The card will be placed, face-down, on the negotiation table, on the selected power's diplomacy track (and this is why you need to select the power in the previous step, telling vassal where the card should be placed)
3. When all powers have selected their wager card they can be flipped using the corresponding context menu option.

Playing a character for diplomacy

1. Right-click a card in your hand and select Play
2. The card will be placed, face up, on the negotiation table.

Trading a character card

This module has no specific functionality to support trades, they are treated as an agreement between the players using additional media or conversation. When a deal is concluded, and both players agree to do the trade, they

1. Right-click the card chosen to trade and selects the menu option "Trade with Power", where Power corresponds to the other power in the negotiation.
2. Note that it is not possible to "Trade with…" any other power than the power corresponding to the card (which means that neutral cards doesn't have the "Trade with…" option)

Leader Cards

The leader cards are not part of the regular hand. Instead, they can be found as small card versions right by the end of the power's respective diplomacy track. Don't worry about the small size, hovering the mouse over a leader card will have a larger version pop-up. In addition, images of all leader cards can be found in the player aid.

You can play leaders in one of two ways

1. Right- Right-click the card (on the board) and select Play. Then go to your hand and select a card to discard.
2. Go to the card in your hand that you wish to discard in order to play your leader. Select Play for X where X is your leader. This will play the selected card and the leader to the board.

In either case, after leader play finished, select flip (Leader Used). This will bring the leader card back next to the power's diplomacy track but with its backside up, indicating that it has been played.

Starting a new turn

When a turn is concluded, click the Refresh icon in the toolbar. This will bring

- All leaders back to their power's hand
- Kutzov (if still alive) to the Russian hand,
- All other character cards (regardless of where they are on the board or in any hand) to the Character Card deck. EXCEPTION: Cards in the Removed pile will not be added to the Character Deck
- All handicap cards back to the Handicap Cards Deck
- Any situation card not in the discard pile will be placed in the discard pile
- All issues will be moved back to their place on the diplomacy display
- All resources, military support and character markers will be flipped (if necessary) and moved back to their respective place on the board
- All temporary markers (usually taken from the markers tray, e.g. additional resource or US military operation) are removed
- Any tactical chits on the board will be moved back to the respective pile of chits

Now you are ready to start the new initial phase.

Tactical Chits

Tactical Chits can be found just above the Battle DRMs Track. Thay are organized in decks from which you can select a specific chit. When drawn, chits are backside up and thus not revealed. When all players involved have selected a chit they can be revealed simultaneously.

Initially the chits in deck are sorted alphabetically. As the game progress and chits are drawn and put back this will deteriorate. Each deck of chits has a Sort menu option to resort the chits.

Track views

The tracks on the diplomacy display are turned sideways and may be hard to read. You can click the name printed on the board to bring up a window showing the track in its “normal” position. Click the name to close the window (or close it the usual way) This also works for the Initial Environment Table.
